BURGLAR CAUGHT IN THE ACT

Armed With Automatic Revolver He Enters House of Timothy O'Leary

Captured by Officer Philbrick and His Arrest Expected to Clear up Breaks

In the capture of Joseph Rosenberg, so she got up and looked out of the early Sunday morning, the police are confident that they have found the man who has been making the breaks about this city. Rosenberg was caught red-handed in the house of Timothy O'Leary on State street, after being discovered in a room by Mrs. O'Leary. When caught he was carrying an automatic revolver in his outside coat pocket. Shortly after midnight Mrs. O'Leary was awakened by the bell in the front of the house. It sounded as though somebody was fooling with it.

DESTRUCTION OF FLAG POLE

Recalls Ceremonies Attending the Erection of Staff in 1882.

During the severe wind and hail storm last Friday evening, the 30 foot flagstaff on the grounds of the suburban residence of Hon. John W. Caswell on Lafayette road was demolished, the wind or the lightning cutting it off at the base.

Mr. Caswell mourns the loss of this flagstaff as he would a member of the family. The pole was erected thirty-two years ago last July. This was a gala occasion at this time, when Mr. Caswell held the office of alderman. A large party of neighbors and friends gathered at the house and under the superintendence of the late Charles H. Downs, the pole was raised. At this time Mr. Caswell placed a rare silver coin under the "cornerstone," upon the completion of which the men proceeded to pack in rock after rock, and scores of shovelfuls of earth. After this the guests repaired to the spacious dining room, where a bountiful repast was served.

The flagstaff was one of the largest and best ever erected in the city limits, and occupied a conspicuous position in the southerly corner of the broad driveway, and bore a tablet on which was engraved, "June 21st, 1882," the date of the setting.

Mr. Caswell is the sole survivor of this pleasant event.

This weather must be rather chilly for motorcycle enthusiasts.

Not a Bad Provision.

A Massachusetts man in tendering to the governor of that state his resignation as a member of an important state commission writes at considerable length in criticism of the law which compels the members of the commission to give their whole time to their official duties.

His reasons for believing that such a provision will in some instances prevent the securing of the best men for the positions are that appointees must be drawn from two classes, one composed of men possessing acquired or inherited wealth and therefore being in a position which renders them indifferent to the question of salary, and a class of men whose earning capacity is less than the salary of the office. The writer feels that in a democracy there would be objection to commissions composed entirely of the first class, while in many cases men drawn from the second class, would be so anxious to retain their positions that their official acts might be warped some times by this desire.

Possibly this may be a good point, but the probability is that the danger which this man sees in requiring members of a commission whose salaries are equal to those of superior court judges is not so great as he imagines. It is his idea that the best men for such positions are those having personal interests which render them independent of the salary consideration, as much would be apt to be most fearless and impartial in the discharge of their duties.

But there is room for argument in favor of requiring men in certain official positions to give the whole of their time to their public duties, instead of dividing their attention between public and private interests. In such cases the salaries must be adequate, and the officials should be selected because of their qualifications and not because of their ability to live without the salary. True independence does not rest on a money basis. The upright and independent man will stand by his colors, regardless of money considerations or the retention of office, and it is men of this stamp that should be selected for important appointive offices. And ordinarily there will be found enough well qualified men who in such positions will be able and willing to give their time to the public without the distraction of side issues of any kind.

It is to be hoped that many practical ideas will be brought to the front at the American road congress now in session at Atlanta, Ga., and it will be strange if there are not, for in attendance are men who have made a study of the road question for years. The interchange of ideas and the relation of experiences, for which such a gathering affords the broadest opportunity, ought to prove of large value to road builders in all parts of the country, and to the communities that are spending large sums of money for the improvement of their highways.

Secretary Bryan is presenting as souvenirs to the ambassadors and ministers who have signed peace treaties with the United States plowshares made of swords. It is a very proper memento of what may have been accomplished by these treaties for the promotion of world peace. And what a lot of material for such plowshares there will be in Europe when the time comes for framing up peace treaties and passing out souvenirs.

More American business from the foreign war. A Massachusetts ship building company has received orders to "put up" 20 submarines as soon as it can be done. Where the order comes from is not given out, but it is clearly understood that the boats are for one of the powers now engaged in war.

In the investigation of the butter and egg trade in New York city it is shown that in 1913 it cost from 18 to 33 cents a dozen to deliver eggs from the producer to the consumer. With such rake-offs as that between the farm and the table it is no wonder that the cost of living is high.

Champ Clark predicts that Wilson will be known in history as a great peace president. He has certainly done well in keeping the country out of war entanglements in the face of abundant opportunities to get into them, and this is appreciated by the great majority of the people; utterly regardless of partisan preference and prejudices.

The Friedmann cure for tuberculosis, which was so thoroughly exploited a few years ago, is discarded by the United States public health service as worse than useless, this decision being reached after an exhaustive investigation. It is a pity that the "cure" proved a failure, but it is well that the truth should be known.

Germany is reported to be making arrangements for a vigorous winter campaign, and predictions of an early end of the war are not so frequent as they were.

Winter is gradually poking its nose under the edge of the tent and will soon insist on coming in.

LITERARY NOTES

Woman's World

Woman's World for December contains appropriate editorial stories and poems for the Christmas season and many timely suggestions among the department notes.

Grace MacGowan Cooke has written a holiday story for this issue entitled "Borrowed and Blue," a romance of the sixties. In the third schoolhouse tale, "The Heart of a Child," Dorothy Whitney discloses a beautiful Christmas spirit in the heart of a little poor girl. "The first mistake," is a series of incidents in the lives of some newly married couples which a minister's wife tells, hoping to save the young couples from future unhappiness. There is comfort and fresh inspiration for mothers in another one of Emily Cavin Blake's "Mothers I Have Known." The serial, "The Fairy in the Web," by Sara Lind says Coleman, is continued, and Maude Bradford Warren relates the story of a young woman who made herself independent by opening a beauty parlor. There are two good poems: "A Song of Lullaby," by Elizabeth G. Reynolds, and "The Star-Step Children," by Strickland Gillilan.

The leading editorial, written by Dr. Frank Crane, on "Christmas Time and the World Meaning of the Family," shows the importance of the family feeling, which is the basis of fraternity, in relation to government as well as to business, and predicts a "golden age" with the growth of that idea. There is a page of practical suggestions for the woman who likes to give Christmas gifts with a personal touch, and Rebecca Deering Moore describes an enjoyable Yuletide party for the little people.

In the Household department will be found the general directions for bread making. Anna W. Morrison gives a great many receipts for reasonable cakes, candies and icings. The Needle work and Beauty articles offer holiday suggestions; the music department furnishes instructive material, and the designs on the fashion pages are timely and attractive.—Chicago: Thirty-five cents.

The December Woman's Home Companion

The December Woman's Home Companion makes a special feature of ideas for Christmas. These ideas are presented not only in the various Housekeeping, Cooking, Fashion and Handicraft departments, but in addition there is a two page spread containing 1,000 answers to the question, "What Shall I Give for Christmas?" These answers are divided and classified under the heads—what to give to mother, father, grandfather, grandmother, daughter, son, the maid, and so on.

In the same issue Anne Morgan, youngest daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, writes a talk to the American girl entitled "Her Responsibilities." Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of Broadway Tabernacle, New York city, contributes a Christmas

PEACE MEN FAVOR BIG NAVY

Strong Endorsement Given to Congressman Gardner's Resolution.

Strong endorsement of the resolution of Representative E. G. Gardner of Massachusetts calling for an investigation of the preparedness of the United States for war, was given today in a letter from the American Peace and Arbitration League, of which President Wilson, former President Taft and former President Roosevelt are honorary members. The letter is signed by Andrew W. Humphrey, executive director of the league. The letter reads, in part:

"I have just read your address in the Record of October 21 on 'The Nation's Security,' discussing the House joint resolution, No. 372 introduced by you, providing for a national security commission. I congratulate you upon calling national attention to our condition of unpreparedness in the matter of national defense.

"The American Peace and Arbitration League not only believes in adequate armament, but we also interpret it to mean at least two battleships per year, with all the subordinate equipment required, until we have a navy commensurate with any possible service that may be required."

In a letter to Mr. Gardner endorsing his resolution, Dean S. H. Worcester of the School of Mines and Metallurgy, El Paso, Texas, says:

"So strongly do I feel about the matter that I think if your resolution bears the fruit it should, it may be considered the most important action that this congress has taken."

"I feel that our future national existence may depend on the results of your resolution."

FIXED AND FAIR PRICES

Modern retail merchandising is founded on the rock of a fixed price for all. But even this fixed price fluctuates with the rises and falls of the market. It is in the latter respect that advertised articles of well known brands stand superior to the average product. Even with the upset market of war times few advertised articles have increased prices to consumers. They have continued to sell at their fixed and fair prices. The manufacturers have in many instances preferred to sacrifice profit rather than public esteem. When you see a national article advertised in this newspaper remember the name as that of an article that merits confidence.

CURRENT OPINION

WOMAN CAN PROTECT HERSELF AGAINST MASHERS

There are three expedients any woman can use to protect herself from mashers, and I will give them in their order:

FIRST, ANY WOMAN WHO HAS TO BE OUT ALONE IN THE EVENING SHOULD DRESS QUIETLY AND STRIVE TO MAKE HER GENERAL APPEARANCE REFINED AND INCONSPICUOUS. SECONDLY, IF A MAN ATTEMPTS TO ADDRESS HER SHE SHOULD PROMPTLY DISCOURAGE HIM BY GLANCE, WORDS AND EVEN ACTION IF NECESSARY; AND, FINALLY, IF A MAN PERSISTS IN ANNOYING A WOMAN AFTER SHE HAS PLAINLY SHOWN HIM THAT SHE IS ANNOYED, SHE SHOULD NOT HESITATE TO CALL AN OFFICER.

In a city the size of New York many respectable women are compelled to go out in the evening without an escort. IT SIMPLY IS NOT FAIR THAT THEY SHOULD BE SUBJECTED TO INSULT which they do not invite, subjected to it even after severe discouragement on their part.—By John J. Fresoli, New York City Magistrate.

PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING

Miss Alice Lambert Becomes the Bride of Remington Merrill.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season occurred at Pottersville, Mass., on last Wednesday evening, when Miss Alice Lambert, daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. Joseph Lambert, was united in marriage to Mr. Remington Merrill, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Merrill of Providence.

The ceremony took place at 7 o'clock in the First Christian church, and was performed by the father of the bride, the double ring service being used. Miss Abbie F. Spinney of Providence, R. I., officiated at the organ. The bride party entered the church and passed up the aisle to the strains of Loehgrin's Bridal Chorus.

The ushers, Albert Leonard and Wallace Curran of Providence and George Rodgers and Harry Kershaw of Pottersville, were followed in order by the flower girls, the Misses Gladys, Mae and Dorothy, Gertrude Gilpatrick of Hampton, N. H., and the maid of honor, Miss Florence Tucker of Rye, and the bride, upon the arm of her father. At the altar the bride was met by the bridegroom and his best man, Willard B. Anthony, of Providence. The bride was given away by her mother, Mrs. Joseph Lambert.

During the ceremony the organist rendered "O Promise Me," and as the procession passed out of the church to the notes of Mendelssohn's Wedding march.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Riverside avenue, where Mr. and Mrs. Merrill, assisted by the best man and maid of honor, received the guests in the large bay window which was effectively arranged in the form of an arch, banked with palms and ferns. The residence was very prettily decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums, this color scheme being carried out in every room.

After the reception the bride threw her shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley, which she had carried during the ceremony, among the assembled guests.

The wedding ring used in the ceremony, was made from the wedding ring of the bride's grandmother, Lam-bert, and a gold ring belonging to her Grandmother Kershaw. The bride was charmingly attired in a rich creation of white satin with shadow lace and pearl trimmings, and the veil, worn in cap effect, and caught with bridal roses. Her traveling dress was of brown chiffon broadcloth with hat to match.

The maid of honor was attractively gowned in pink messaline with chiffon overdress of white shadow lace. She wore a charming mound of honor's cap, with a bouquet of pink roses.

The flower girls wore white voile trimmed with valencienne lace and pink sashes and carried baskets of flowers which they scattered in the aisle, as they passed.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill left by automobile for the 9.50 train to Boston from which place they will go to Maine and New Hampshire on their honeymoon.

The wealth of gifts received was the mute attestation of the love and respect in which the happy couple are held by their associates.

Mr. Merrill holds a lucrative position as an agent of the Rhode Island Insurance Company of Providence.

To both Mr. and Mrs. Merrill are extended the heartiest wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

CARDINAL HINTS AT CONSPIRACY

Urges Opposition to Recognition of Government in Mexico.

Boston, Nov. 15.—Opposition to the recognition of President Wilson of any government in Mexico until religious freedom was guaranteed was urged by Cardinal O'Connell in an address to the Federation of Catholic Societies today.

"The administration," said the cardinal, "has at last done something to ensure the safety of our nuns and priests in Mexico from the brutal rapacity and barbarism of these savages who, for more than a year past, have conclusively proven their absolute unfitness to govern. But the good work is far from finished."

"We are hearing much these days about peace and freedom. Let us first of all see to it that our very doors the peace of conscience and freedom, are not violated by men who might well be brought before the tribunal of the common-law of humanity instead of aspiring to the presidency of a sister republic and our nearest neighbor. But Catholic men will not rest until the truth is made known as it is and not as it is reported by those who have proven themselves publicly and privately incapable of being trustworthy agents of this government."

"And when the truth is known then all the world will realize that for the sake of our public honor as a nation, we must put an end to the Masonic conspiracy which has for two years deluged Mexico with blood, drained the material resources of that country and spread atheism and anarchy over a land once happy and industrious."

"Let us tolerate no further even a suspicion of what has been more than once openly asserted, that the leaders of this anarchy are receiving underground support from this country; but let our Catholic men continue to investigate the truth of the conditions and then stand for the truth in all their might until every word and sentence of its revelation is heard at Washington."

"This is the work which faces every Catholic man in this country today. Let the Federation lead the way, and America and Mexico will one day owe it a great debt of gratitude."

chase to the burglar and finally cornered him in the parlor, in the mean while having telephoned for the police.

Officer Philbrick responded and when he entered the room the burglar warned him not to touch him, at the same time reaching in his right hand pocket. Before he could act, the officer closed with him and floored him with a well directed blow from his fist. When he went down the officer seized his right arm and pulled it out of his pocket and with it came an automatic revolver, fully loaded.

Rosenburg told the officer he had got him alright this time. At the police station he said that he was a sailor from the Leonidas at the navy yard and that he had been away for a week and had come back that day. In his clothes was found a pawn ticket for a chain in a local pawn shop street Friday, a gold watch and some money. He gave his age as 19 and he is a well built and well dressed young man, but from his conversation the police are confident that he has a record.

The muzzle of the automatic revolver is nicked, and the police are confident that it was done by breaking glass. All of the breaks have been the same, breaking a small hole over the catch of a window and throwing back the catch. In the O'Leary house he gained entrance through a rear window, which he found unlocked, and was easily raised. After leaving the front of the house he went around to the back where he found the window unlocked.

The police are confident that they have the right man and that the end of the breaks is in sight. The night police officers since the breaks have been putting in many hours of extra duty in plain clothes, going on duty in different parts of the city every afternoon. They did this without extra pay for a police officer gets the same pay if he works ten or twenty four hours a day.

Rosenburg will be arraigned before Judge Torrey in District Court this afternoon.

FAMOUS JEWEL COMES TO LIGHT

Presented to Dartmouth College in 1785—Unearthed in Parkhurst Hall.

Hanover, Nov. 15.—A famous jewel, presented by a London broker in 1785 to the president of Dartmouth college and designed to be worn by him on occasions of state has been unearthed in the vaults of Parkhurst hall.

It is oval in form and is made of beaten gold. It bears the following inscription: "The gift of John Plude, broker, Grace Church street, London, 5 April, 1785, to the president of Dartmouth college, for the time being at Hanover in the State of New Hampshire." This jewel has been worn for many years and has been forgotten in the vaults of Parkhurst hall.

President Nichols will probably resume the old custom of wearing it on state occasions.

SANTA CLAUS SHIP SAILS FOR BELGIUM

New York, Nov. 15.—With more than 1200 tons of Christmas gifts from the people of America, a Santa Claus ship, known ordinarily as the naval collier Jason, sailed yesterday for Europe. A message of Goodspeed from President Wilson was received from Lieutenant Commander C. P. Courtney, U. S. N., shortly before sailing time. The docks, as the ship cast loose her lines, were black with thousands of school children.

The gifts that the Santa Claus ship carried were gathered from every state of the Union. They include almost everything from toys and dolls to clothing and food. So heavy was the rain of Christmas presents for the children of Europe that a force of 50 soldiers and 50 sailors from the navy yard was required to receive and repack them so that an equal distribution might be made in the several countries for which they are intended.

The ship will call first at Edmonth, where the gifts intended for England, France and Belgium will be discharged; then she will proceed to Rotterdam, where gifts for Holland and Germany will be discharged. At a later date another consignment will go forward for the people of Russia and Poland.

Nearly all the gifts received were accompanied by notes of good will written by the donors. As the spirit of neutrality of the United States was unwaveringly maintained in many of these messages, it was found necessary to withhold them.

LECTURE.

"The Light of Europe" will be the subject of a fine stereopticon lecture on the present war, by Frederick Dean of New York, to be presented at Rye town hall on Wednesday evening, Nov. 18th, under the auspices of the Federated Clubs of Rye.

Joseph Johnson has taken up residence on Woodbury avenue.

WILL DRIVE CALIFORNIA BY MOTORS

Success of System on Collier Leads Daniels to Adopt it for Superdreadnaught.

Washington, Nov. 15.—The super-dreadnaught California, one of the three huge new ships just ordered, will be driven by electric motors. Secretary Daniels ordered this type of power plant for the big fighter today on recommendation of Rear Admiral R. S. Griffin, engineer-in-chief of the navy. If it proves as great a success in the battleship as it has in the naval collier Jupiter, navy officers foresee the complete displacement of direct steam drive in future merchant warships.

The California, which will be built at the New York yard will be the first electrically driven warship ever built, as the Jupiter was the first deep sea vessel of any type to be fitted with motors. The decision to install the new system aboard the battleship was arrived at only after exhaustive study of the performance of the Jupiter.

As in the Jupiter, the main power plant of the California will be steam turbines, driving dynamos, which will generate electricity to give the ship a speed of at least 21 knots. The Jupiter far exceeded her speed requirements.

The theory on which constructors worked is that turbine engines attain their greatest efficiency only at high speed. A ship's propellers cannot be driven at that speed without decreasing their efficiency and subjecting the vessel to enormous strain. The reduction in propeller speed was first solution in propeller speed was first solution in the collier Neptune, in which a gear transmission system was used. This was not found entirely satisfactory and the electric equipment of the Jupiter followed. A big fuel saving has resulted in a reduction in weight, since it is unnecessary to carry the reverse engine required aboard direct drive turbine steamers.

Reverse engines are far below the power of the forward engines, making turbine engines hard to stop and difficult to handle. This also is overcome in the electrically propelled craft.

its full power to reverse is possible with the throwing off of a switch.

Paragraphs from "GERMANY AND THE GERMANS"

BY PRICE COLLIER.

The policy of making other people afraid of you must have an end, the policy of making others respect and like you can have no end.

Germany has shown us that the short-cut to the governing of a people by suppression and strangulation results in a dreary development of mediocrity. She has proved again that the only safety in the world for either an individual or a nation is to be loved and respected, and in these days no one respects slavery or loves threats.

What every democracy of free men wants is not as much, but as little, organization as possible compatible with economical administration of industry, the army, the navy, and the affairs of the state.

As long as we Christians have given up any shred of belief in Christian ethics, as applicable to international disputes, we must live by the law of the strongest. We do not bless the poor in spirit, but the self-confident; we do not bless the meek, but the proud; we do not bless the peace-makers, but those who urge us to prepare for war; we do not bless the reviled and the persecuted and the slandered, but those who revolt against injustice and tyranny; we do not approve the cutting off of the right hand, but admire the mailed fist; and it is only adding to the confusion to raise millions for war ourselves, and then to present a handsomely bound copy of the Beatitude to our rivals.

Exegesis solves no international quarrels, and the mastery of men is not gained with dictionaries and grammars.

We really know and hold as an inalienable intellectual possession only what we have gained by our own effort, and with a certain degree of actual exertion. People who have never worked out their own salvation always join, at last, that large class in the body politic who don't know what they want, and who will never be happy until they get it.

GOETHALS MAKES ANNUAL REPORT

Panama Canal Governor Describes Battle Against Earth Slides.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Concluding chapters in the story of American pluck and perseverance that made possible the construction of the Panama canal are written by Colonel George W. Goethals, governor of the Zone, in his annual report submitted today to Secretary Garrison.

The report tells of the canal builders' battle against treacherous slides, of the establishment of the permanent form of government in the Zone with Colonel Goethals as governor; of the beginning of the work on fortifications to guard the great waterway against invasion, while imposing rows of figures tell the cost of details in the canal's construction and maintenance.

The report shows that the canal's cost, including the current appropriation now stands at $253, 559,049.69. More than $274,000,000 was appropriated. Of that amount more than $12,000,000 was for the fortifications.

"Work was continued during the year on the gun and mortar batteries," the report states "and by the close of the year the concrete work was practically completed as well as the greater portion of the back fill. On July 1, 1912, the construction of redoubts in accordance with plans prepared by a board appointed for the purpose and approved by the secretary of war, was undertaken and there were completed as well as the clearing necessary in connection with them."

The continued earth slides that checked the progress of the canal builders was described at length.

humble fleet, except those at navy yards for repairs, and on duty in foreign waters, left today for the southern drill grounds to begin a week of divisional and individual practice. Results of fleet target practice already held are said to be far below those of other years. This is accounted for by curtailment of practice due to stay in Mexican waters.

Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight in command of the Narragansett bay naval station, issued orders today taking off the restrictions on news from the wireless station here which has been on since right after the start of the European war.

Inquiry as to Cost of Armor Plate Plant

An inquiry into the establishment and maintenance of a government armor plant will begin at the navy department tomorrow by the committee appointed by congress. Senator Tillman of South Carolina; Representative Padgett of Tennessee, and Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, Chief of Ordnance, are the members of the committee. Trips will be made to the three armor plate plants and estimates of costs will be asked of the manufacturers. The committee hopes to submit its report to congress before the first of the year so that action on the question of establishing a government plant may be had at this session of congress.

Contract for $3230.

Two contracts were received in the hull division on Saturday from the department at Washington. The contract was made for the building of 550 boat water breakers and the total cost will be $3230. Four hundred breakers are to have a capacity of eight gallons, while the remaining 150 are to have a capacity of five gallons.

HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Italian Jumps From Moving Train and Gets a Shaking Up.

On Sunday a party of Italians visited the Boston & Maine railroad station to bid a fellow countryman farewell, who was leaving on the 11 o'clock train for Boston. So anxious were they to give the last farewell that two of the party lingered on the train until it had gained good headway. One of the men succeeded in alighting all right but the last one was not so fortunate, as when his feet struck the platform, he went down in a heap and rolled over like a ball. He was picked up by some of his associates and in a few minutes limped off. At first it looked to the bystanders as though the man was badly injured by his fall.

VAUDEVILLE AT THE PORTSMOUTH THEATRE.

The patrons of the Portsmouth Theatre will be privileged to hear many strange musical instruments rarely seen in America. The Two Balkans have toured Europe with their act and have been in this country only a few months. They came shortly before the European war broke out. They stayed to The Herald man this morning that they are very glad to be here and like the United States very much. They intend to remain in this country, and have already taken out their naturalization papers.

The second big act presented is by the Three Pendleton Sisters. Their billing reads, "Unusual dancers of unusual dances." Their dances all in costume, include a gypsy dance by the trio and a conga rhythm a floral waltz and a Spanish dance as solos, and close with a whirlwind specialty by the trio. They are very graceful dancers and show much ability and their act is sure to please the vast number of patrons of the theatre.

SECURED FOUR DEER.

Local Hunters Did Not Have Their Usual Good Luck.

The party consisting of Capt. Henry Marden and Messrs. Earl Dearborn, Charles B. Woods, Charles F. Hussey, Albert Brown, Arthur England, John Tilton and Fred Brown returned on Sunday from northern New Hampshire, where they have been on a hunting trip the past two weeks. On account of the recent extremely dry weather, the woods therefore being naked, the usual good luck of the party was not present this year and only four deer were brought home. These were all taken on last Friday.

The hunters report that game was abundant but hard to secure as many days it rained, and then froze. Any deer was thus warned of the coming hunter by the cracking of the crisp frozen twigs. On Friday a fall of snow was reported, and on Sunday morning, when the party left for home, the thermometer registered but two degrees above zero.

CAUSED A DELAY.

Box 9 Should Have Been Rung In for Saturday Night's Fire.

Considerable valuable time was lost on Saturday night at the fire in the B. & M. railroad yard by the ringing in of Box 46, instead of Box 9, at the corner of Deer and Vaughan streets. The most of the apparatus, with the exception of the chemical, which had been called on a still alarm, went up Washington street directly away from the fire and were obliged to return to the foot of Bridge street. The crew of the chemical on their arrival found that the hose from their tank was insufficient to check the blaze and had to return to Maplewood avenue and lay a line of hose. Chief Woods desires to impress on the public the necessity of sending in an alarm from the nearest box as it means much to the firemen.

METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

Metropolitan Opera House

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, General Manager

New York, March 23, 1914.

Gentlemen:— Since November, 1911, this Company has been using, exclusively, the Hardman Pianos. There have been eighteen of these instruments in constant use in the dressing rooms of the artists, in the orchestra, and elsewhere for practical work, besides a large number used by the artists in their private apartments, and it gives me much pleasure to express on behalf of this Company and also the artists taking part in the performance, the thorough satisfaction we all feel in these instruments.

The fine tone quality, fullness and splendid durability of the Hardman Pianos are fully recognized by every one here, and it is very evident that they must be exceedingly well built to stand the usage to which they are subjected, owing to the extremely heavy demands which we make upon them. We shall start upon the coming season of 1914-1915 with complete assurance in regard to the unequalled satisfaction that the Hardman Pianos will give to us, and to our artists.

Believe me, Very truly yours,

Upon being questioned, they said they had seen the blaze at a distance of eight miles.
